If you are considering becoming a member, we encourage you to attend one of our meetings. If you'd like to talk with the member who lives nearest to you, we'd be glad to arrange that. We also welcome any questions you may have about the SRC and its role or duties.

The SRC provides people in the community the opportunity to be involved in changing lives. That's not something that should be undervalued or underestimated. Join us in making a difference.

Idaho State Rehabilitation Council

About Us

The Idaho State Rehabilitation Council (SRC) monitors the policies and practices of the Idaho Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (IDVR).

State Rehabilitation Councils were created by amendments made to the Rehabilitation Act in 1993 when disability rights advocates succeeded at the federal level in persuading Congress to create a mechanism supporting people with disabilities receiving vocational rehabilitation to take an active role in shaping the services they receive.

The SRC makes recommendations to the Division about eligibility, the scope and effectiveness of services, and functions performed that affect the ability of individuals with disabilities to achieve rehabilitation goals.

Activities

State and Strategic Plans:

The SRC participates in disseminating the Idaho Division of Vocational Rehabilitation's draft of the State and Strategic Plans and solicits comments on those plans. The SRC prepares written recommendations for the Plan and coordinates with IDVR during the planning process.

Meetings:

The SRC meets four times a year. Dates and locations are available online and in the SRC office. Council members participate in local and state activities dealing with disability related issues.

Surveys:

The SRC conducts needs assessments and surveys. Some of these efforts are accomplished independently, and others, collaboratively with IDVR.

Employer attitudes, client satisfaction, and staff perceptions of IDVR are a few of the inquiries that have been conducted.
